

Treasures and Visions – Stockholms Auktionsverk 350 years

The exciting story of the world's oldest auction house

Stockholms Auktionsverk is the oldest auction house in the world. The book tells the exciting story from its founding in 1647 by Privy Councillor Claes Rålamb to today's online auctions and the future of AI.

Over the past 350 years, millions of objects have changed hands - from everyday objects and livestock to exclusive art, sneakers and rare books. Stockholms Auktionsverk thus becomes a mirror of Swedish cultural history from the 17th century to the present day.

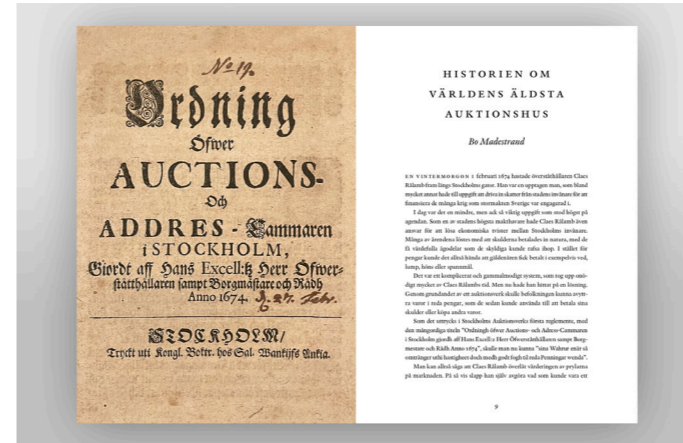

The book is written by the cultural journalist Bo Madestrand and the expert Tom Österman at the platform Auctionet, which today owns Stockholms Auktionsverk. It also contains many new photographs by Patrick Miller and Lars Trangius.
